If you cannot find an answer to your question, please do not hesitate to contact us. Need help? Contact support I was selected for a summer internship 2016. Es tried to be very open by filling out a preference form: I chose many products as my favorite products and said I was open about the team I wanted to join. I was even very open at the location and start date to get the host proper interviews (in the interview I discussed the start date until both I and my host were happy). You could ask your recruiter to review your form (it's very cool and could help you a lot because they have more experience). Search a potential team. Before interviews, try to find a clever question that you will ask a potential entrepreneur (do a search in a team to find nice and profound questions to impress your host). Prepare your CV well. You are very likely not to receive algorithm/data structure questions like the first round. It's just going to be a friendly conversation if you're lucky. If your potential team is working on something like machine learning, expect them to ask you questions about machine learning, courses related to you are machine learning, and relevant experience (projects, practices). Of course, you need to study this before the interview. Take as long as necessary if you feel rusty. It takes a while to prepare for the alignment of the host (this is less than a technical interview), but it is, of course, worth it. NOOOOOO. You're talking to a military romance con man. I received an email from the U.S. Army directly answering your question, which is pasted below, please keep reading. I believe that you are the victim of a fraud of military romance, whereas the person you are talking to is a foreign national impersonating an American soldier claiming to have been deployed abroad on a peacekeeping mission. This is the key to the fraud they always claim to be on a peacekeeping mission. Part of their scam says they don't have access to their money, that their mission is very dangerous. If your friend's girlfriend/future husband/wife asks you to do next or to do now or to do anything, it's most likely a scam: Moves to a private messaging site immediately after meeting you on Facebook or SnapChat or Instagram, or on some dating or social media site. Often they delete the site where you met them immediately after they asked you to switch to the more private messaging site. Professes love you very quickly ... seem to quote poems and lyrics along with a kind of use of broken language, as they quickly preach their love and devotion. They also showed concern for your health and love for your family. Promises marriage as soon as he/she gets the leave they asked you to pay for. They demand money (transfers) and Amazon, , Verizon etc. gift cards for medicine, religious practice and leave home, internet access, complete work tasks, help sick sick get him out of trouble, or something sounds fishy. The military provides all the needs of soldiers, including food medical care and transport for vacation. Trust me, I lived it, you must have been cheated. I'm just trying to show you examples that you're most likely to be in a call. Below is an email response I received after I sent a request to the U.S. government when I discovered I was defrauded. I got this wonderful answer back with a lot of useful links on how to find and report my scammer. And how to learn more about romance scams. Right now, you can also copy the image he gave you and do a google image search, and you will hopefully see the images of the real person he impersonates. It does not always work and perform some excavation work. If you find the right person, you can send them a message and warn them that their image is being used for fraud. Good luck to you, and I am sorry that this can happen to you. Please continue reading the government's response I got below it is very informative. You have contacted an email that is under the supervision of the U.S. Army's Criminal Investigation Command. Unfortunately, this is a common concern. We assure you that there is never any reason to send money to anyone claiming to be a soldier online. If you've only spoken to that person online, it's likely they're not U.S. soldiers at all. If this is a suspected ruse on a social media profile, we encourage you to report it to this platform as soon as possible. Please continue reading for more resources and answers to other frequently asked questions: How to report a facebook profile of a ruse: Caution- ... < Attention- ... > Answers to frequently asked questions: - Soldiers and their loved ones are not asked for money for a soldier to go on vacation. - Soldiers do not have to pay money for secure communications or transfers. - Soldiers don't need permission to get married. - Soldiers' emails are in the following format: john.doe@mail.mil < Caution-mailto:john.doe@mail.mil > anything ending in .us or .com is not an official email account. - Soldiers have medical insurance that pays for medical costs, receive treatment in civil health care institutions all over the world – family and friends do not have to pay their medical expenses. - Military aircraft are not used for the transport of private property. - Army finance offices are not used to help soldiers buy or sell any kind of items. - Soldiers stationed in combat zones do not have to ask for money from the public to feed or house themselves or their soldiers. - The deployed soldiers do not find large amounts of unclaimed money and need your help to get that money out of the country. Anyone who tells you that one of the above circumstances is true is most likely impersonating a soldier and trying to steal money from you. We encourage you to immediately stop all with that person.
